- Prep over a few days. Get a jumpstart on giving your body time to adjust by gradually going to bed 15 minutes earlier over the course of three or four nights.
- Take advantage of the power nap. If you're out of it in the afternoon, take a 20-minute snooze. It's long enough to leave you feeling refreshed, but not so long that you'll have a hard time falling asleep later.
- Exercise, always.
